AT PARTING

Goodbye, Old Nineteen-fifty-six!
We're not too sad to lose you.
The world has faced so cruel a fix
Through those who have abused you.

But now the New Year comes along
We hope for better treatment,—
That Nineteen-fifty-seven may bring,—
So, bury all resentment.

For ever through the mills of God
The grinding is not swiftly
But surely; and with friendly hands

The flower of faith can quickly
Restore the love that leavens all.
We face the need of keeping
Truth and Peace, and Justice too,
To win the harvest reaping.

To the Editor:

The decision of Union Oil of California to abandon billboard advertising reminds us that many years ago a somewhat similar decision was made by Standard Oil of California. Standard's policy at that time was to abandon all billboard advertising in unincorporated areas, on the grounds that advertising on the rural landscape is inappropriate and distasteful to the motoring public. The Company's hope was that its competitors would follow suit. When they failed to do so, Standard eventually felt obliged to resume rural outdoor advertising, in order to meet competition.

The present move on the part of Union Oil is based on similar grounds. Union officials cite "the traffic hazard which a great many experts have indicated billboards tend to increase." Furthermore, they state that there is "an apparent and growing resentment on the part of many people . . . to obscuring our natural beauties with this type of advertising."

There is no question that, as stated, the resentment against inappropriately located billboards is growing by leaps and bounds. As the number of billboards in California, especially along freeways, has been rapidly on the increase, the public is becoming aware of the fact that something must be done — soon — if our expanding highway system is to embody sound modern standards of good appearance.

The California State Highway Commission has reaffirmed its policy to landscape freeway borders only where local ordinances protect the freeways from billboards. With the Highway Commission proposing an expanded landscaping program, made possible by Federal highway funds, certain areas may profit by this policy. However, we must realize that landscaping is mainly limited to metropolitan areas, and to a large extent the motoring public will still judge California by the appearance of the rural landscape.

Raising our sights to meet modern standards and to make our highways compare well with those

Wherever Kippy Stuart Went On Her Travels She Heard About Our Carmel

I return from a far journey half way around the world, bringing New Year's Greetings to Carmel and to the Pine Cone. It all started in Los Angeles, while I was getting my airplane ticket validated. The busy reservation attendant looked up at me with surprised wonder in his eyes. Almost with reverence he asked, "Do you really live in Carmel?" Much to my surprise he started discussing our Green Belt problem and almost begged me to preserve Carmel and its environs. I boarded the plane for Puerto Rico, settled myself comfortably and opened my copy of the Pine Cone. The smiling stewardess tripped down the aisle, greeting her new charges. Suddenly she stopped short and dropped into the seat by my side. And then she started. How she loved the Pine Cone. Oh yes, a friend in Carmel frequently sent her a copy. Was the beautiful Christmas tree at the foot of the hill still there? This stewardess had been a child in Carmel. . . . on and on, far into the night.

I landed in Miami. I had missed my plane to Puerto Rico. An attendant gathered me and my luggage and escorted me to a hotel. He asked the usual question, "Where are you from?" The word Carmel is electric! This stranger started to tell me things about Carmel I had never heard of. The old bath house, if you please, old Gus, our once-upon-a-time LAW. . . . was the old tree at Lincoln and Ocean still standing, he remarked with a smile, "You know the tree that we had to curtesy to in passing."

YOU'RE INVITED TO SEE COLOR TV OF TOURNAMENT OF ROSES PARADE

MPTV on Lincoln Street, corner of Seventh Avenue, will present a special color telecast of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Parade, commencing at 8:30 o'clock on New Year's morning. The color broadcast of the annual event will come "live" from southern California, with full color views of floats, spectators and celebrities riding in the parade.

Everyone is invited to attend. Monterey Peninsula TV — The Cable — can accommodate a sizable group in its Seventh and Lincoln showrooms which are specially furnished for leisurely viewing of both color and black and white telecasts.

Buff, Francis Working On Biz Licenses

Equitable adjustment of Carmel business licenses and identification of out of town delivery trucks are problems Councilmen Francis Whitaker and James Buffington are working on this week. They will present a report on the two matters to the city council shortly. Carmel business licenses, at present based on gross receipts, may be "inequitable" according to Councilman Buffington. Buffington and Whitaker hope to be able to recommend a fair adjustment in this respect.

Out of town delivery trucks, giant size, clutter the Carmel streets, causing a traffic problem in the business district and a police headache. In the residence zone huge moving vans damage trees and again present a traffic hazard. "We must have identification carried on each truck, either sticker or plate," says Art Plaxton, City License Collector and Deputy Clerk. "Then the police won't have to hunt the driver, find out if the company has bought a license to deliver in Carmel, etc. They'll save a lot of time and maybe the city will have a little more revenue."

Grace Howden Attends Australian Concerts, Sees Olympic Games, Encounters Annette Kellermann

Dear Wilma Cook:

Nov. 22, 1956

Anyone travelling usually finds there is little time for letter writing, so I shall just send "high-lights" of the past month since sailing from San Francisco, October 26.

It was a fairly smooth voyage with exception of a few days between Auckland and Sydney when we had high seas with much tossing and pitching. Idamae Olson and I are both good sailors, however, and were not seasick, although even some old-hands of the crew were.

We had warm weather again this year between Honolulu and Suva, so I swam four times, but, just as last year, the weather was cool after Suva, so — no more swimming for me! We hope to find more swimming if we have bookings from Melbourne around South Africa, as no shipping is routed now through the Suez Canal.

At home you may all feel alarmed about the Suez situation, but here no one seems to be much concerned about it—at present, anyway. I, personally, have confidence that President Eisenhower has sufficient influence to smooth the troubled waters of International strife. How fortunate we are to have him at the helm in such critical times!

There were gay parties on board the Orcades and we met a great many delightful people, some of whom had been on a round-the-world-cruise. The passenger list was the largest in the history of any ship landing in Honolulu.

The night of President Eisenhower's re-election, at a party I gave, twice I danced during the evening, as there was a calm sea, gay company and excellent orchestra.

I met on shipboard, Mr. Gleason, one of Australia's leading artists who had just completed a tour of America with many canvasses of well-known artists' work, which he also showed on

WHEEL-CHAIR TOURIST

(Editor's note: The following item appeared in an Australian newspaper concerning Mrs. Grace Howden, Carmelite on round-the-world tour. See her letter in adjacent column).

An inveterate world traveler, Mrs. Grace Howden, of Monterey, California, was bent on seeing the Olympic Games, despite arthritis which has kept her confined to a wheel-chair for long periods.

When she and her nurse-companion, Mrs. Olson, arrived this week, they found that pre-arranged seat bookings for the Games had not been fixed up. So Mrs. Howden, with standing-room only tickets, will see them from her wheel-chair, which she still must use on most occasions.

Mrs. Howden's home is at Carmel-by-the-Sea, where she is active in every cultural enterprise in the district.

THROUGH THE HOOP

Carmel High's graduating class of 1956 proved to have a little sharper edge than the rest of the alumni and the current Padre varsity as they won a pair of convincing victories from the class of '54 and this year's varsity. Led by George Wightman, San Jose State Frosh hoopster, the '56 aggregation disposed of Dave Castagna's '54 squad, 38 to 37, last Friday night and came back the following night to whip the varsity, 46 to 38. The varsity had reached the finals of the holiday tournament by downing Henry Overin's ancient '52 gang, 34 to 32. Last year's league champions were manned by Jim Konrad, George Wightman, Mike Mosolf, Dick Ogden, Bob Michela, and Dick Jennings. The '54 squad creaked along with Don Leidig, UCLA, Gary Nielsen, OSC, John Farrell, Monterey Peninsula College, Dave Castagna, UC, and Howard Taggart, Stanford.

The Coast Counties Athletic League's first invitational basketball tournament proved a little rough on the representatives from the CCAL as the visiting schools from the PAL and the SCVAL walked off with most of the awards. Watsonville, rated as the weakest team in the A division this season, salvaged a little pride for the local league by making it to the finals only to be walloped by a surprisingly good Carlmont team. Monterey High found the going too rough in the first round as the classy Palo Alto five routed the Toreadores in convincing fashion. Host Santa Cruz salvaged the consolation trophy to prevent all the gold from going out of the league. The caliber of basketball played in the A-division this season seems to be slightly below par as the big schools have been bowing to some of the small ones. Gilroy, B-division leader, recently clipped Salinas by nearly 20 points and little Junipero Serra, Monterey, dumped mighty Watsonville by eight points. Should be just about an even up race for the top spot in the A-division of the CCAL.

VIEWING THE BOWL GAMES

Plenty of football action left in 1956 and 1957 opens with four bowl games which could give a chronic television dial-twister the lock arm. If the tubes in the set stay healthy, armchair television grid fans can feast on this tasty schedule: Saturday, December 29, the Blue-Gray Game at Montgomery, Alabama—channel 4 and 8 at 10:45 a.m.; Pittsburgh and Georgia Tech in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Florida—channel 5 at 11 a.m.; the East-West Shrine Game at San Francisco, California—channel 4 and 8 at 1:45 p.m. Sunday, December 30, the Pro Football Championship between the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears in Yankee Stadium—channel 4 and 8 at 10:45 a.m. Tuesday, January 1, Colorado and Clemson in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Florida—channel 5 at 10:45 a.m.; the Cotton Bowl with Syracuse playing TCU at Dallas, Texas—channel 4 and 8 at 10:45 a.m.; Baylor vs. Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, Louisiana—channel 7 at 10:45 a.m.; and the great Rose Bowl classic at Pasadena where Iowa meets Oregon State—channel 4 and 8 at 1:45 p.m.

To this corner the games shape up something like this: The Blues in the North-South All-Star Len Dawson's passing will make the difference; Georgia Tech to beat Pitt in the Gator Bowl—Tech has stronger reserves and it may be a little warm in Jacksonville; East over the West in San Francisco's Shrine Game—football players don't train on the Bayshore Freeway at 4:00 o'clock in the morning; Chicago Bears to beat the Giants—sharper hatchets; Colorado over Clemson in the Orange Bowl—further West; TCU to beat Syracuse in the Cotton Bowl—Horned Frogs are better balanced; Tennessee over Baylor in the Sugar Bowl—Majors and a solid defense should do it; Iowa to beat Oregon State in the Rose Bowl—men against the boys.

CROSBY GOLF TOURNAMENT SLATED FOR JANUARY 11

Preceded by a bargain golf clinic on January 10, the fabulous Bing Crosby Invitational Pro-Amateur Golf Tourney will begin in the early hours of January 11 and continue for three fun-packed days. Play during the first two days will be over the Monterey Peninsula Club and the Cypress Point courses with the 50 top qualifiers taking their final swings over the Pebble Beach course on Sunday, January 13.

For the average golfer who is anxious to improve his game, the January 10 golf clinic features instruction by the world's top golfers who go through the complete bag of clubs and give out with invaluable secrets on how to get maximum performance from each club. This phase of the tourney costs only a buck and is a real bargain both from the instructional and entertainment standpoint.

Most of the big-name pros will warm up for the Crosby Tournament by playing in the Los Angeles Open which initiates the yearly golf trek of the touring professionals. Cary Middlecoff, winner of the 1955 and '56 Crosby Tournaments, will be back to defend his title and try for three straight. Middlecoff's 202 score hung up in last year's tourney is the best ever registered in the Crosby and offers a real challenge for the seasoned pros and the top-flight amateurs. Last year's winning pro-am team had a local flavor as George Galios, Monterey amateur, teamed with George Blomquist to fire a record-breaking 188 over the rain-soaked courses. Besides the galaxy of professional golfers on hand for the great charity tournament, the courses will be liberally sprinkled with movie stars, sports figures, and the very best of amateur golfers. A working knowledge of golf isn't necessary to thoroughly enjoy the three days of fun provided by Bing Crosby's great tournament.

All the proceeds from Bing's tournament are ticketed for charity with host Bing picking up the tabs. Our Peninsula Youth Centers were realized as a result of this golf extravaganza and the youth of the Monterey Peninsula are leading better lives because of the Crosby Tournament.

A tournament ticket for all three days costs $5; Friday only $2; Saturday only $2.50; and Sunday's finals $3. Tickets are available at Glennon's in Carmel, Bud Giles Men's Wear in Pacific Grove, and Rasmussen and Moody in Monterey.

Wherever Kippy Went On Her Travels She Heard About Carmel

group of strangers and the first question asked, "Where are you from?" Buffalo... New York... Paris, France... London, one after another home town was identified. No fuss was made over these announcements. My reply, "Carmel," was like the shriek of a siren. On the instant I became the cynosure of all eyes. This had nothing to do with me, for I was in a group of important persons, yet I was touched with the glamour of that magic spot, Carmel-by-the-Sea. The entire conversation hovered around Carmel and the Pine Cone, which by one enthusiast, was called "That beloved periodical." Out of this melee a voice asked, "Oh, do you know Mona Williams?" I read her remarkable story... how old is Mona, is she pretty, what does she look like? Yes, I knew Mona, but I doubt if Mona knows me, and I did my best by our Mona.

Next comes the Virgin Islands, to me, the only spot in my travels that can approximate Carmel's beauty. I was wandering about in an old cathedral all alone. A smiling reverend greeted me and in the soft patois of the Islands, introduced me to a diminutive woman in religious garb. I could hardly understand the mixture of British, Spanish and the local patois. I personally, created no excitement in these dark-skinned persons. I was asked to sign their register, and then the sparks began to fly. These two were off in a burst of pyrotechnics, pointing to my signature as a resident of Carmel. I had no idea what was going on. Their excitement grew and grew. I caught words like Malay... Malie... Finally in desperation, the little nun grabbed me and led me to the office. What you suppose she handed me? A copy of Bill O'Malley's The Little Nuns and the Reverends! Touche, Bill! In your name, I left a modest contribution to that small parish, and its dark-skinned people.

I haven't even begun yet! I was skimming across the beautiful St. Thomas lagoon in a glass bottom boat, peering at the wreck, far below the waters of an ancient Spanish Galleon. A voice spoke up, a hushed, reverent voice, "You ought to see the glass bottom boats in Monterey, California." Then everybody was off. Until that remark, we were all strangers, with small interest in each other. It turned out that Daisy Bostick has a fan in the Virgin Islands. Daisy was eulogized for keeping old Carmel alive with her snappy stories of Long Ago. C. Edward Graves and his conservation articles were eulogized. What did I tell you about our Pine Cone and its fame!

In one leap from the Virgin Islands, I landed in Miami, then Palm Beach. I had a hard time there for the residents are "town proud" and insisted that Palm Beach was superior to Carmel. I bided my time. Sure enough here it came. This was a top-notch bridge game, with concentrated players. Suddenly one of the players burst into laughter, and through her laughter, I caught the name, Jimmy Hatlo. I pricked up my ears. I was asked the usual question. Oh—yes, I know Jimmy Hatlo, but I doubted if Jimmy knew me. The funniest story of them all broke. This grandmother had five recalcitrant grandchildren. Her manner of discipline was unique. Long ago, as punishment, she forced these children to study the Hatlo They'll Do It Every Time. Her reason being, to teach them the psychology of people and the strange ways of life. Result? All five kids are now in their teens, and there is a battle each day for the newspaper, and these fans.

Chicago next, where I joined members of my family. I did expect talk of Carmel, but I didn't expect the boys and girl who had gone to school here to be so interested in Carmel and its doings. But they were. In Chicago proper, I met a very old lady and she, too, is a Pine Cone fan. She remarked how amusing our Pine Needles always are, and oh yes, friends frequently sent her copies of the Pine Cone.

Last stop, Denver, in a gorgeous snow storm, with the Rocky Mountains putting on their garb of Christmas beauty. This scene is the Denver Country Club. Carmel, once again becomes the topic of conversation. My hostess topped all my stories. It was her task to take a five-year-old to the dentist. The family were surprised when the little fellow clapped his hands with a goody... goody. The child made no objections to the dentist office, which was some sort of miracle. Entering the dentist office, the little chap became more and more excited. "When will we see him, mother?" At last the child was taken into the office and placed in the chair. He looked all around expectantly, "Where is he?" The dentist was introduced and the child began to bawl. "You promised me I was going to see Dennis, the Menace!" Touche, for you, Hank Ketcham!

Wearily and travel worn, I arrived once again in Los Angeles. Maybe I was feeling sort of left out with all this eulogy of the Pine Cone. Yet every dog has his day, and I had mine, that is, in a small modest way. The colored porter was helping me with luggage, and he too sprang to life when I mentioned Carmel. Finally I came into my own. The porter's son is a gardener here in Carmel, and sends his father clippings of my own The Time Has Come, Pine Cone Garden column. Oh well! If I will live among GIANTS! And so, the WORLD sends its

Grace Howden Attends Australian Concerts, Olympics

pacity will be 1500 and 3000.
Both Melbourne and Sydney have good symphonies which I shall hear this week. Also a youth symphony is in the making.

The Australian people are great music lovers. Nellie Melba, one of the world's greatest opera and concert singers, was born in Melbourne. She was the best-loved soprano in America during her career there.

We arrived in Melbourne in time for the Mozart Opera Festival where we heard The Magic Flute and Don Giovanni. We enjoyed the gorgeous voices and excellent conducting of the orchestra directors. However, Her Majesty's Opera House is small and very old.

Melbourne, with its wide, planned, tree-lined streets, is superbly beautiful. One wide avenue has large trees down the center with colored lights like Christmas at home. They probably had in mind "killing two birds with one stone."

Sydney, the largest city in Australia, reminded us of San Francisco with its hills, harbors, bridges and cosmopolitan atmosphere. We are much impressed with the beauty and the progress of Australian cities in general.

The residents of Melbourne have taken the greatest joy in preparation for this tremendous undertaking and are doing it all very well, in spite of some mixups with tickets for the Games.

The next Olympiad can undoubtedly profit by the experience of this one as to decorations for the city where it will next be held. Really artistically beautiful effects down the streets can be created with no greater expense to anyone and probably less in many instances with the necessity for conformity with an architectural design made by experts in that field.

The hospitality committee must be very large. A visitor has only to register interest in some pursuit to be invited for activities.

We have a guest card to the Royal Empire Society. It is a delightful small exclusive clubhouse where they serve meals and afternoon tea. Some cultural event is scheduled practically every day. They are going to arrange to take us for a tour of the city and we are attending a formal reception there this week.

We stopped at Scotts Hotel at first, an older English-type hotel newly redecorated. We are now known over there so I like to entertain there when I invite someone for luncheon or dinner. They have TV in the cocktail lounge. This Victoria Hotel has no liquor on premises, but it stands high socially and rates are less than half those at Scotts. They have not raised their rates during the Games. This hotel was the setting for the banquet preceding the big Civic Ball given in Town Hall adjoining the hotel. The ladies were lovely in luxuriously handsome gowns while the gentlemen were most impressive in many colorful uniforms. The majority of Australian girls are beautiful.

Miss McCallum from Australian Broadcasting Company, whom we met on shipboard, sent a Herald newspaper representative for interview. They featured my wheel-chair in small article the day after the big Olympiad opening on Thursday, November 22. I attended the athletic events in the main stadium on two days. The uniformed marshalls carried me, wheel-chair included, right down to a ring-side seat at foot of aisle. Mrs. Olson went out for the opening ceremony, but I preferred to stay out of that crowd. We have also attended the swimming sessions and they were exciting to see—water-polo matches, precision swimming by the American team of beautifully trained young girls, diving and races.

The Stadium is a glorious sight with sun shining down on the colorful garb of many nations. (I claim to have brought some of our California sunshine along with us as a good-will gesture), for the weather had been very cold until our arrival in Melbourne.

The Australians are a sincere, lovable people. We can learn much from them as to courtesy and charm. They are family folk who take their children with them wherever practical instead of leaving their rearing to young, inexperienced baby-sitters. Boys are taught from an early age how to act as gentlemen in the presence of ladies.

You will have been reading at home each day of all the events as they happen, and watching them on TV shows; but to be here in the actual setting, seeing the various national dress, hearing the spoken word of many languages, and personally witnessing the thrilling events as they happen—is something that will be a lasting memory.

The most dramatic event, to my mind, was the American clergyman's record high jump when the pole quivered in the breeze, but his hands high overhead, obviously in prayer, the pole held. America has made a better showing than we ever could have hoped for, way ahead in events, of all other nations entered.

We have tickets for the closing ceremony. I hope I can see that spectacle, with the torch being extinguished, people paying homage to the winners, and friendly hand-clasps for the vanquished, knowing that they have participated in athletic perfection, either winning or losing. It has been a highly spiritual and gratifying experience—just to have had the chance to participate—and all visitors going home with many happy memories of a wonderful occasion during which much better human understanding has been created for preservation of world peace than could possibly be attained by any Eastern Exhibitions . . .

By CASHION MAC LENNAN

Having visited and enjoyed, recently, viewing some outstanding exhibitions and galleries of National importance, I thought my impressions might be of interest to artists and others locally.

In New York, two important large exhibitions were on display—one at the Whitney Museum, of oils, water colors, and sculpture; the other at the National Academy where their Annual of water colors and prints was being held.

At the Whitney there was a larger group of artists represented, who, while working abstractly have also felt the importance, or necessity, of conveying the sources of their inspiration, whether it be the human figure, landscape, or still life. This was evident in both sculpture and painting. This year there were fewer abstractions of mere color arrangement, which shows, in the minds of this group of painters, an awareness that something more than a sensation of color must be conveyed to the beholder.

At the National Academy, I was pleased to see Donald Teague's fine water color, Capri, a product of his recent tour in Europe, well hung in one of the important galleries. Other California water colorists exhibiting there included Don Kingman, Richmond Kelsey, Maurice Logan, Phil Dike, Phil Paradise, Noel Quinn, and Rex Brandt, all upholding California's fine tradition of skillful water color painting.

Though the majority of paintings in this show were in the conservative school and of the usual subject matter, in the strong graphic section of the show there was a great variety of treatment and points of view, many prints employing color with freshness and vitality.

Another exhibition in New York which I enjoyed was that of Gladys Rockmore Davis—formerly a fellow student of mine at the Chicago Art Institute—being shown at the Midtown Galleries. Her paintings in gouache, made during her recent visit to the Orient, give vivid impressions of Balinese dancers. In them she shows a feeling for the drama of the whole occasion, as well as presenting the definite action of the performers. She uses color tellingly. The monster masks and other exotic elements are strikingly presented. I liked especially The Monkey Dance. Here, a circle of upraised hands around a fiery center builds up a climax of her impressions.

At Rockefeller Center, in the elevators of the Radio Music Hall, the superb inlays of wood from many parts of the world, depicting Grecian decorative compositions, are remarkably beautiful and worth going to see.

Much talked of in New York art circles is the new Guggenheim Museum, a circular tower with three-quarters of a mile of ramp in place of stairways, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. This is now in the course of construction. Mr. Sweeney, the director, plans, when it is completed, to hang modern paintings beside the work of the old masters so that one can more easily compare their work. A new possible venture by him is the making of animated cartoons to present paintings in a new and perhaps more popular manner.

Visiting Argent Galleries on Fifty-seventh street, where my own water colors and prints have been shown, was a pleasant experience. There, I was fortunate to meet Mrs. Winthrop Pratt, (Elizabeth Pratt) president of the National Association of Women Artists, a charming woman, a distinguished painter, and an enthusiastic worker for the National Association.

In Washington, the National Gallery, the gift of Andrew Mellon to the nation, is architecturally a stunning building with charming flower-filled inner courts. It was swarming with visitors. Its collection ranges from early Italian, through Dutch, Flemish, French (romantic, cubistic, and impressionistic) and American paintings and sculpture. The gallery of early American design particularly interested me. Probably the most provocative painting in the gallery when I was there, was Dali's The Last Supper, for crowds were always gathered before it.

In the Corcoran Gallery, I enjoyed seeing the fine collection of the late Senator Clark of Montana and Santa Barbara, presented to the gallery by his wife and three daughters. I had seen some of the paintings in his Santa Barbara home where one of his daughters, Huguette, a painter herself, had a splendid studio. The Corcoran pictures range from Italian re-

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

"The Kids of Tomorrow"

I have just received a review copy of a book by Lyle H. Kingston, a Wisconsin conservationist, entitled "On Behalf of the Hunted" (C. C. Nelson Company, Appleton, Wisc., $3.00). Mr. Kingston, an engineer by profession, is himself a hunter and the significance of the title lies in his pleading for what he calls "Commonsense Conservation." The book is a selection of columns that he has contributed to various Wisconsin papers under the latter title.

As a fellow columnist I admire the wide range of his conservation interests. He has one column that appeals especially to my interest in field photography. He calls it Harmless Hunting.

This column tells the story of a member of a hunting party who was stationed on a deer runway with both rifle and camera. When a big buck came past, he shot him twice with the camera but was too late with the rifle. "Six months after that," writes Mr. Kingston, "when the bucks we others had killed were in oblivion, our friend had a lasting memo of an exciting moment."

Mr. Kingston covers so well a wide variety of subjects that a column-length review can only select one or two for comment. I liked especially one called Slow Death.

The author had returned for a visit to one of his boyhood haunts—a favorite trout stream in deep woods which "tumbled from one pool to another, some of them 20 feet wide and 50 long." To his disappointment he found the forest gone, the land a rocky cow pasture and the pools "a string of frog ponds, full of oozy silt."

He adds the very discerning and sad comment that "the kids of tomorrow will never know that here was once a beautiful little trout stream." This is the Slow Death of his column caption. Where can we ever stop this process, except by setting aside more national and state parks and forests and wildlife refuges?

In these reservations, which for the most part maintain the status quo in our scenic resources, the "kids of tomorrow" will know what the original heritage was. Here is a quick picture of the results of an ideal application of conservation principles.

If soil and water conservation were practiced ideally, our top soil would not diminish through erosion by running water or winds, and our rivers would be regulated, not by multi-million dollar flood-control dams, but by controlling the run-off on watersheds.

If forest conservation were practiced ideally, our publicly-owned and privately-owned forests would actually increase gradually in wood growth until eventually we had a semblance of the original forest cover, except in the most fertile agricultural lands.

If wildlife conservation were practiced ideally, we would have neither a surplus nor a shortage of beneficial species, with public wildlife refuges reserved for visitors without guns.

If wilderness conservation were practiced ideally, we would keep mechanical transportation out of large segments of our public lands, making them available by foot or horse trails only.

Is it too much to expect a New Year's hope that we can make rapid progress in approaching this ideal? If all conservationists will work together, my answer is No.

Thomas Warren

Thomas C. Warren of Carpinteria, who spent his boyhood in Carmel, was found dead in his pickup truck on December 16, an apparent suicide. Mr. Warren had been despondent about the threat of approaching blindness. A note to his wife and daughter was found on the floor of the truck. A hose led from the exhaust of the truck to the cab.

Mr. Warren was born on April 13, 1911, in Oakland, the son of the late Thomas C. and Berenice Warren. He grew up in Carmel, attended local schools and the University of California, receiving a doctorate in law degree in 1935.

He was a veteran of World War II, serving as a captain in the Air Force.

Mr. Warren had been a citrus rancher in the Carpinteria area since 1940 and was vice president and a director of the Carpinteria Lemon Association and past commander of the H. S. Russel Post No. 69, American Legion, in Carpinteria.

Survivors are his wife, Joan, and daughter, Vicki, both of Carpinteria.

Private funeral services were held on December 18 with burial in the family plot in Carpinteria.

WHAT'S DOING

D. D. Muir, your Telephone Manager in Carmel

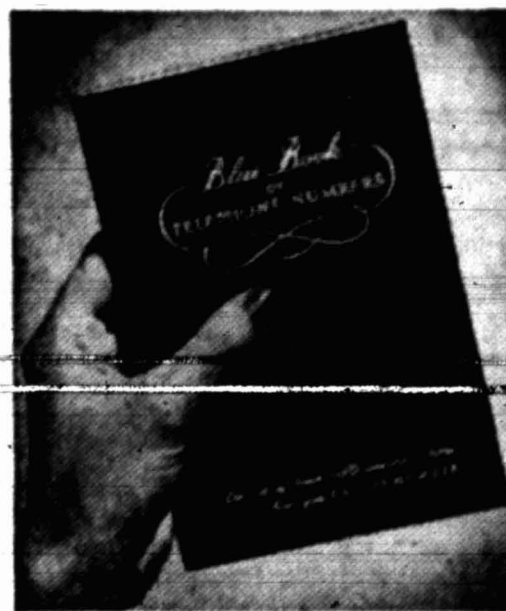

Listen, my little sweetheart...

This was the year you discovered that fascinating thing Mommy and Daddy call the telephone. Pretty wonderful, isn't it? But just you wait! Why, by the time you're grown—say twenty years from now—lots of wonderful things will have happened to your phone. You'll probably have one in every room of your home. Maybe you'll even carry a tiny one in your pocket. Combined telephone and television may be yours if you wish. All these things will come from never-ending telephone research—will come, too, from the men and women of Pacific Telephone, who work to make your telephone more useful every day.

Let your Personal Number Book remember the number

Do you find yourself with more than the usual number of phone calls to make this time of year: friends to call and thank, stores to phone, party arrangements to make? Well, now is the time to collect all these telephone numbers in one spot where they'll be easy to find the year around. And a good place to write them down is in this handy Blue Book. We'll be happy to give you one. Just call, write or drop in and see us. The Blue Book of Telephone Numbers is yours for the asking.

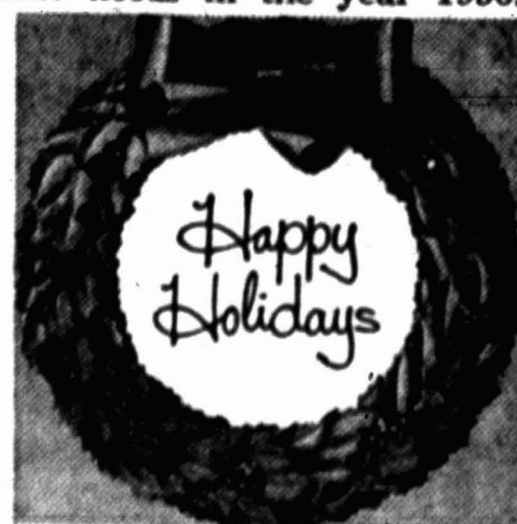

Holiday Greetings

We wish to take this opportunity to extend Holiday Greetings to all our customers on the Monterey Peninsula. It has been a pleasure serving your telephone needs in the year 1956. As we look back on this year, which has been a busy one, our customers have placed approximately 100,000 long distance calls, to say nothing of assistance calls which our operators place to help our customers get correct information.

At the beginning of the year, we had approximately 29,619 telephones installed in customers homes on the Peninsula. Now we have approximately 33,235 telephones or a gain of about 3,616.

We hope the new year will be healthy, happy, and prosperous and hold many good things for you.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The ever-present power of the Christ, Truth, will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon to be read entitled Christian Science includes the following from Isaiah (52:10): "The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God."

Selections to be read from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (55:15-21): Truth's immortal idea is sweeping down the centuries, gathering beneath its wings the sick and sinning. My weary hope tries to realize that happy day, when man shall recognize the Science of Christ and love his neighbor as himself, — when he shall realize God's omnipotence and the healing power of the divine Love in what it has done and is doing for mankind.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Your library staff would like to wish all of you a very happy and and prosperous New Year. If it may not be prosperous, let it be happy, which is much more important.

Because all of the new books last week were novels, we are putting into circulation this week a collection of books a little top-heavy on the non-fiction side. Let's take a brief look at some of the most interesting ones. Remember that a list of them will be posted where you may consult it when you come into the library. It will probably be on the bulletin board right now, but we shall be conducting a sort of informal poll, and the final resting place will be decided after the poll taking.

Marion Anderson's autobiography is written in a warm, personal, conversational, style which is very pleasing. There is little mention of her pre-desegregation problems, which must have been acute at times. It is mainly the story of her hard work to reach the top of her profession, and the result is a very readable book, entitled My Lord, What a Morning.

In Uruguay there is a place where the borracho trees grow. These trees have trunks that bulge to give them a wine-jug appearance, and for that reason they are called by the natives "the stick that is drunk." From this saying comes the title of a new book by Gerald Durrell, which is The Drunken Forest. It is a lively account of a specimen hunting trip the Durrells took through South America. Adventures and specimens were theirs in almost equal proportions.

In her new book entitled Diamond, Emily Hahn tells what diamonds are, where they are, who found them, and what they are worth. She also tells stories of the men who have been prominent in the diamond industry, the diggers, smugglers and speculators. She finishes by discussing the cutting of diamonds, and the famous stones of the world. A fascinating book, which proves for us that diamonds are interesting commodities as well as a girl's best friend.

Ruth Moore has given us the history of our earth and the science of geology in her new book The Earth We Live On. A. L. Rowse is a professor of history in an English university, and the author of several books. His latest is the story of the Churchill family from the days of Cromwell and Charles I. The book is illustrated with many family portraits and is called The Early Churchills.

Some years ago Louise Tharp wrote a popular book entitled The Peabody Sisters of Salem. Now she has a new one about the Ward family, Julia Ward Howe, her two sisters Louise and Anna, and her brother Sam. The title of the book is Three Saints and a Sinner.

Lowell Thomas, Jr. seems to be following in the footsteps of his famous father, being already engaged in world travels and writing entertaining books about them. This time he and his wife, Tay, visited three continents in their small plane which they lovingly called Charlie. Their book is Our Flight to Adventure and is well worth while.

There are four new novels. Their names you will find on the typed list of this week's new books. Happy reading!

Exhibit at Valley Inn

The California branch of the American Artists' Professional League are sponsoring an exhibit at the Carmel Valley Inn, beginning on Saturday and continuing through March. Among exhibiting artists are Cecil Chamberlain of Los Gatos, chairman of the northern California branch; Mildred Kaucher, Geneva Stark and Dr. Dorothy Kaucher, all of Los Gatos; Edna Drew of San Francisco, Wilfred Provan of Palo Alto, Albert Kern of San Mateo; and Gladys Howland of Santa Cruz.

Both watercolors and oils will be featured and subjects include portraits, land and seascapes and still life. The league inaugurated National Art Week, which is observed annually throughout the United States. Their own galleries are at 15 Gramercy Square, New York.

Town House Art Show

On Wednesday afternoon there will be an unusual program at the Carmel Foundation Town House. It will consist of a talk by Elise De Celles Beaton, on Ghost Towns, to be followed by a tea. Mrs. Beaton, language teacher at Carmel High School, has spent much time in the Mother Lode country, painting the interesting old ghost towns. She has been active in art work ever since, as a young girl, she made paper dolls and party favors for large Chicago department stores. She has studied at the Chicago Art Institute and the Carmel Art Institute, having worked with Armin Hansen and the Cunninghams. She has also studied art at the Monterey Peninsula College and at Stanford. All are invited to attend the program and tea and to come in at any time through January, from 10:00 o'clock to 5:00, Monday through Friday, to see Mrs. Beaton's paintings.

Carmelites Attend Assembly

Mrs. Jean Leonard and daughters Ethelyn, Jean, Marcia and Patsy and son Arch; Mr. and Mrs. Eric Childs; and William Lange will be among the delegates from the Monterey Peninsula attending a three-day assembly, sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society in San Mateo this week end. Meetings begin on Friday and continue through Sunday.

Stallings Stamp Club Santa

Assisted by Colonel John R. Wright, president, and L. S. Stallings, Gene McPherson, program chairman, provided a "surprise" program for a large group at the last meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Stamp Club held in the Carmel High School.

Stallings conducted a "stamp Quiz." First in identifying the stamps offered was Jesse Martin; second, Colonel William B. Graham; third, Lt. B. E. Reams. From the word "Pitcairn," contestants made as many words as possible in a given time. Allan C. Wigham was first and Lt. Reams second.

The oriental auction, conducted by Gene McPherson with stamps furnished by E. R. Blankenship of the Monterey Stamp Store, was carried out after the Chinese fashion. Stamps were placed in numbered envelopes. Each person receiving an envelope solicited bids from those present. These bids were recorded on slips of paper. The highest bidder paid and took the stamps. Proceeds went to the club. At the close of the auction, envelopes of stamps were given to each person present. L. S. Stallings was the Santa Claus.

Gene McPherson gave a talk on German overprints during World War II. A chart of all countries concerned and the stamps illustrated this historically interesting talk.

Coffee and cookies were served by Miss Lydia Weld and Mrs. Nora McCaffrey Law.

The next meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Stamp Club will be an auction, Monday, January 7, at 8:00 o'clock in the Carmel High School.

All stamp collectors on the Monterey Peninsula are cordially invited.

Home for the Holidays

From all directions, Carmel college students have come home for Christmas vacation and are busy this week with reunions and "catching up on the news."

One of the first groups to arrive for the holidays was from Pomona College and included Genia Beatrice, Lucy Carmalt, Patricia Finley, Fletcher Dutton, and Joanne Dutton. From the adjacent campus of Scripps College came Jane Bond, and graduate music student Paula Schneeberger, who also has a secretarial position at Pomona.

Stanford students at home are Susan Nutter, Sarah McCloud, Gilbert Neil, Priscilla Clark, Jeanne Fratessa, Howard Taggart, John Thompson and Kyrk Reid.

Susan McCloud, attending the University of Geneva, was unable to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCloud, but traveled from Switzerland to North Africa to spend Christmas with her aunt. Anne Hicks came from Dominican College in San Rafael; also Mary Ann Odell; Jack McCormack and Paul Fratesa from the University of San Francisco. Mike Mosolf is here from Santa Ana Junior College; Cynthia Cox from Oregon State College, and from the University of Oregon Charlotte Boyd and Gail McHarry.

Among San Jose students back in Carmel for the holidays include Melinda Scheffer, Bob Douglas, Sandra Shager, Frances Castrejon, George Wightman, and Penny Stuefoten. Stewart Emery and Gary Nielsen are vacationing from Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo, and from the Santa Barbara campus of the University of California the holidayers are John Zellhoefer, Buzz Knight, Bill Gorham, and Mary Osborne.

Diane Redding has returned from a trip to Europe to celebrate Christmas at home. College of the Pacific students here are Barbara Mitchell, Judy Rigsby, Peggy Weaver and Sandra Sowell.

University of California students at Berkeley reuniting in Carmel are Robin and Gray Burnham, Sydney Tice, Don Martin, Kurt von Meier, Ashley Cunningham, Skip Lloyd, Julie Work, Sandra Stolic, Lynn McMath, Felix Requiro, West Whittaker, Bruce Bixler, David and Susan Castagna, and Peter Hatton.

Roberta Vallon will return to the University of Redlands after New Years. Dan Marshall traveled across the continent from Yale to spend the holidays here. Julie Mayer is home from Carleton College in Minnesota, and Scripps students spending the vacation in Carmel are Judy Wallace and Helen Ross.

Pat Ricketts of Fresno State College also came home for Christmas.

Holiday Reunion

For the first time in 15 years, Mrs. Anne Howard of Pebble Beach had her three children and their families with her for the holidays. Mr. and Mrs. James H. Carole MacKenzie Married Carole Ann MacKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. MacKenzie of Carmel Valley, was married on Sunday afternoon to Petty Officer Third Class John E. Dawson of the U. S. Naval Air Facility in Monterey. Chaplain Herbert C. Albrecht performed the ceremony in the chapel of the Naval Postgraduate School, decorated for the occasion with arrangements of red roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of Chantilly lace and slipper satin, made with an illusion neckline yoke and full, waltz-length net skirt with appliques of lace. A band of pearls held her fingertip veil in place and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Bridesmaids were Elizabeth Reams and Darline Tendergrass, dressed alike in blue crystallette ballerina-length gowns and wearing corsages of pink roses.

Best man was Lee Christenson, and ushers were William Cadenhead and John Lenke, friends of the groom stationed at the Naval

Ruth Sobolik and Paul Warner will be married on December 29 in Carmel Mission. Ruth is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Sobolik of Omaha, Nebraska, and is at present club news editor of Air Facility.

Mrs. MacKenzie attended her daughter's wedding in a lavender and mauve flower-printed ensemble with charcoal accessories.

The reception following the marriage ceremony was held in Crisculo Hall at the Postgraduate School. When the young couple left for a southern California honeymoon, the bride changed to an aqua wool suit with which she wore patent leather accessories. They will make their home in Monterey when they return.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Jack Dawson of Wayne, Nebraska, who was unable to attend.

Present at the wedding was the bride's aunt, Mrs. Donald Clawges, and her daughter Patricia who stopped here for the occasion on their way from Okinawa to the Azores.

PETER WRITES FROM MADRID

City Attorney Tom Perry has the latest report from the wandering Mawdsleys (retired city clerk, Peter, and his wife, Lucy). A card from Madrid dated December 7 says they are headed for the Canary Islands.

Other Carmelites abroad, reporting back by Christmas card: The Edward Kusters, in London; Mrs. Jessica Gilby, also in England; the Zenas Potters in Italy; Mrs. Grace Howden in Australia.

the San Francisco Shopping News. She was formerly an advertising copy chief at Macy's California, and assistant manager of the Omaha World-Herald.

Paul is the son of Captain and Mrs. S. H. Warner (USN ret.) of Carmel. He is a 1949 graduate of Carmel High School and also a graduate of Stanford University where he was a member of Chi Psi fraternity. Paul is now a member of the advertising staff at Macy's California.

Mrs. Ruth Lusch of San Francisco will be matron of honor for the bride, and the bridesmaids will be Coleen Hogan, Marian Henderson, Donna McCormick and Virginia Elam.

Paul's best man will be his brother, William L. Warner of Portuguese Bend, California, and ushers will be former Carmel High classmates Robert Barry, Steven Brooks, John Egan and Basil Allaire. Also planning to attend the wedding are Paul's Carmel High friends, Lew McCreery, Matt Schmutz and Curtis Gorham.

The reception will be held in the Copper Cup Room at the Naval Postgraduate School.

Sheila Godwin Makes Debut

Among debutantes making their formal entrance into society at the Cotillion Ball at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco tonight will be Sheila Godwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Godwin. Sheila returned on December 19 from New York where she is a student at the Parson's School of Design. With her parents she has been staying in San Francisco since the end of last week attending pre-Cotillion festivities, and this evening will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by her parents at the Palace Hotel before the ball. Next summer Mr. and Mrs. Godwin will give a formal dance at Cypress Point Club in honor of Sheila.

Party, Presents, Poem
For Blanche Tolmie
On Her Birthday

A large company of the friends of Miss Blanche Tolmie gathered at the Carmel Foundation Town House on December 16 to celebrate her birthday. Whether or not she can trace her ancestry to the ancient Greek and Egyptian Ptolemy family, Miss Tolmie has made a name for herself on the American stage and since her return to Carmel, at Carmel Foundation, where she gives constant and valuable service as director of the Wednesday programs.

This was in the nature of a surprise party, with music led by Miss Lindsay-Oliver's Irish harp, a gift of a radio set, delicious refreshments, and the felicitations of many friends. Captain Archer
M. R. Allen, president of the foundation, read a citation expressing the appreciation of the board of directors.

A birthday you say? Why certainly,
dear,
Happy birthday, the whole day long.
My friend, you could have one each day of the year
And I'll pour out my heart in a song.
No matter how fast or how many may come You're the kind that will never grow old.
With that smile on your face and the light in your eyes
And the love in your heart pure gold.
While you're true to the trust that God gave you, my dear,
When he gave you your first birthday,
Your heart will grow younger each day of the year
And you'll always be happy and gay.
And time will pass by, like a swift flowing stream
And time will not mar your sweet face
If you're true to your trust, and hold fast to your dream,
Time will add to your beauty and grace.

At present, the gallery is hanging a large collection of recently acquired contemporary paintings. These contrast vividly with the rest of the Corcoran collection which is preponderantly religious in character and conservative in method of painting.

The Phillips Gallery in Washington, though small, housed in a former home, contains many famous paintings — Renoir's The Luncheon of the Boating Party, Karl Knath's Deer in the Forest, Daumier's The Rebellion, and many excellent examples of the work of Picasso, Braque, Cézanne, Van Gogh, Marin, Degas, Boudin, and Kohoschka, amongst others. At present the gallery is also showing a loan collection of the oils and water colors of Charles Burchfield, which includes November Evening, a favorite of mine.

In San Francisco, I enjoyed seeing once more Edward G. Robinson's collection. Memorable in this collection are Cézanne's Black Clock, a fine Gauguin flower piece, a Degas sculptured dancer, and a fine Corot figure painting.

I had seen and enjoyed these paintings in Mr. Robinson's home in Beverly Hills, where he had displayed them in a fine gallery attached to his house; but, now, I understand, they are to be sold. I have heard that the Ottawa Museum has offered over $2,000,000 for the collection.

Water is cheaper than Dirt

Good safe water delivered at your home is literally cheaper than dirt. A ton of water (240 gallons) costs less than 15 cents. A ton of dirt dumped in your yard would cost many times 15 cents just for trucking alone.

This low cost of water is really remarkable when you consider that it includes collection, storage, purification, delivery, and a vast amount of engineering "know how."

of other progressive states is a movement to which the California Roadside Council devotes its effort. The Council (address: 12 Garces Drive, San Francisco 27) needs the support of every person who shares its aims. The fact that these aims are shared by a large and growing mass of citizens is attested to by the new policy of Union Oil to cease offending the motoring public by "obscuring our natural beauties". We congratulate Union Oil of California, and we call on the people of the state to follow this signpost and to help us launch action which will protect California highways from blight.

Very sincerely yours,

Since your editor has a "thing" about billboards, the above letter may mean more to me than to you, but in any case, it brightens my New Year and I'm passing it on.

An unrelated matter but nevertheless a New Year brightener is an article in High Fidelity Magazine (November issue) in which Jan Peerce describes the welcome the Russians gave him on his opera-concert tour this summer. Apparently "enthusiastic" is an understatement. The populace at large went crazy over our Metropolitan tenor and so did the pros. The latter placed their hands on his belly and asked him to give with big notes so they could feel his breathing. They couldn't believe that he had been taught to sing in barbarous America. Surely he had gone to Italy for voice study?

American concert-goers were losing their hearts to several Russian musicians on American tour about the same time Jan was conquering Russia.

All of us are duty bound to be very mad at the Russians... especially in view of their recent performance in Hungary. So I'm being very mad... but it's uphill work.

Maybe the next "high level" diplomatic conference should be done in operatic arias or piano

Family All Home For Holidays

Only child of Mrs. Charles A. Stewart not spending the holidays in her home on Carmel Point is George Stewart who is in Austria and plans to remain in Europe until April. Gathered to enjoy the Christmas vacation with Mrs. Stewart are her son-in-law and daughter Captain and Mrs. George Luker of Memphis, Tennessee, their son Ned and daughter Ann, a student at the University of Oregon. From Eugene, Oregon, have come another son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Wooliver and son Jeremy; and from Palo Alto Mrs. Stewart's daughter Catherine, and husband K. Stanley Thompson and their three small children, Katie, Stewart and Kenneth. Charles (Sandy) Stewart, Carmel attorney who lives with Mrs. Stewart, completes the family party.

On Saturday evening Mrs. Stewart entertained at a cocktail party so that her Carmel friends might meet all the family together. Others who have entertained for the visitors are Mrs. Robert Ross, Mrs. Mark Raggett, Mrs. Audrey Tetley and Mrs. Charles McHarry.

Gail Hennessy Wed in Mission

The marriage of Gail Marian Hennessy and Frank W. MacDonald was performed in Carmel Mission on December 20 at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon by the Right Reverend Monsignor Michael D. O'Connell, assisted by Father Ignatius Loughran of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Carmel Valley.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen T. Hennessy of Carmel Highlands, was given in marriage by her father. Her white heavy ribbed taffeta gown was made in Empire style with the skirt flaring in princess lines to a waltz length hemline. The lace yoke of the bodice, small in front, extended in back to a deep V below the waist, ending in a large bow of the taffeta at the hipline. Her fingertip veil fell from a three pointed lace Juliet cap, the front of which was edged with net ruching and embroidered with seed pearls. Her bridal bouquet was a French nosegay arrangement of white bouvardia.

Maid of honor was Frances Zupanovich, sorority sister of the bride at San Jose State College, and bridesmaid was the bride's sister, Mrs. John G. Frey, of Burlingame. Both attendants were dressed alike in crystalline dresses similar in style to the bride's gown but with small bows in back. They wore small white lace caps and carried ribbon streamered nosegays of red carnations.

Mrs. Hennessy chose to attend her daughter's marriage in a grey wool sheath dress with seed pearl and crystal embroidery outlining the neckline, a fox stole, white hat and orchid corsage.

Mrs. MacDonald, mother of the groom, wore a toast brown dress, beaver stole, brown hat and orchid corsage.

Best man for the groom was his brother, Robert MacDonald of Carmel Valley, and ushers were John Bell and James Boles of Carmel.

The wedding reception was at Highlands Inn where the gardenia adorned bride's table was placed in the dining room, decorated with white Christmas bells.
